CARE AND MAINTENANCE

Concrete games require little care and maintenance throughout their lifetime.

Installation:

During installation care should be taken to protect the surface and sides of any table or piece being handled. Keep any wrapping on until installation is completed. Bolts should be tightened slowly, alternating between bolts so that undo pressure is not put on a single point of the table.

Daily care:

Corn hole boards may have dust, small dirt particles, sand, leaves, tree needles, or other debris on them from being outside. Before play, simply wipe off the boards before playing with a brush, towel, cloth, or even their hands.

Weekly or Monthly care:

Optional: You may want to hose off the boards now and then with water from a hose or spray bottle and a cloth. A non-corrosive detergent/soap is optional.

Yearly:

Concrete should be evaluated or inspected every year and if it is determined that the boards should be resealed, then a concrete sealer should be applied over the surface and sides of the boards. Manufacturer recommends a quality polyurethane sealer, of which there are many brands. Failure to reseal concrete can lead to staining and over time to deterioration. Corn hole boards with artwork and chess/checker tables can be resealed yearly to protect the artwork on corn hole and mixed medium tables such as chess tables or backgammon. Fall, is the best time to reseal concrete games before the winter weather sets in.

Powder coated parts should be inspected for scratches and touch up paint applied every year, if needed, to provide maximum rust protection and for aesthetics. Manufacturer recommends an outdoor paint matched as closely as possible to the original color provided.
